Science of the Mind: How Jurors, Judges and Clients Really Make Decisions

In 2014, US District Judge Michael Simon and Christopher Dominic, President of Tsongas Litigation Consulting, discussed what cognitive science can teach us about how jurors, judges, and others make important decisions. Since then, even more has been learned in this developing field, now known as "Behavioral Law and Economics." Come join us on December 5 for the latest insights from this fascinating and important topic.

For more information: Contact Adrian Brown, US Attorney's Office at 503.727.1000. For registration questions, contact the MBA at 503.222.3275.
